Making great sport happen

STRI Australia provides consulting, design and management services to improve and future-proof natural and synthetic sports and recreational turf surfaces. Delivering prescriptive, cost effective and sustainable solutions for every environment and unique situation, we utilise up to date technology and world class research.

Data driven sports and recreational turf surface performance analysis online portal.

TurfSync Pro is a bespoke online portal that assists with managing sports fields and recreational areas through its easy to use data collection platform. It provides real time information, analysis and reporting to support decision making.

How TurfSync Pro can help you

Enables condition assessment to be undertaken using multiple criteria during the season, highlights issues and allows trends to be easily seen.

Determines potential usage capacity based on the current condition and agronomic and construction details.

Compares potential usage to actual usage to show whether a sportsfield is being underused, overused or has an acceptable level of use.

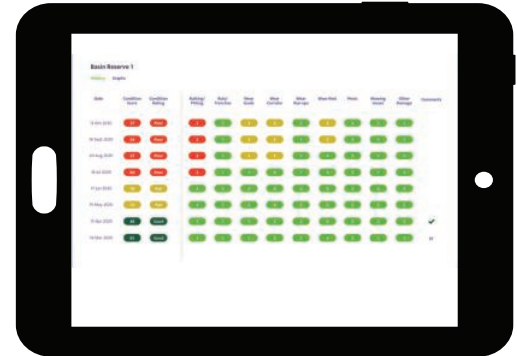

Provides analysis backed data to support decision making around managing usage, allocating resources and planning capital works.
